Tom Wolf, Governor

Teresa Osborne, Secretary of Aging

Are you one of the many Pennsylvanians who need prescription medicine . . . which you cannot afford?

Sadly, a large number of people are unable to work, due to injury or illness, or may be on a fixed income. They risk their health by sharing drugs, skipping doses, or doing without medication, just to make ends meet.

There is Relief in Sight

Wouldn't it be wonderful if there was a way to get some help with the medicine you need? If you do not qualify for any state or federally funded programs and you have little or no prescription coverage, we may be able to help.

For those who feel that they have nowhere to turn because they simply do not have enough money to cover rising medication costs, there is a source for help and support:

Pennsylvania Patient Assistance Program Clearinghouse.

Under the Department of Aging, this program works to provide qualified patients the opportunity to reduce the cost of some medicine.

Do I Qualify?

To use the program, you must:

- be a Pennsylvania resident
- not take part in any other state or federally funded drug program
- have little or no drug coverage (which may include patients who reach the Medicare Part D Coverage Gap)

Our Service Does Not Stop There
Many people rely on the Pennsylvania Patient Assistance Program

Clearinghouse, not only for help to obtain available medications, but also for the understanding and advice that our staff offers about each situation. In many cases, we suggest other programs or agencies that may be useful for your specific needs.

We are proud of the work
we do for those in need.

Let us help you, too.
